Dr. Crusher WONG

Senior Education Development Officer,
Office of the Chief Information Officer,
City University of Hong Kong

Biography

Dr. Crusher Wong received funding from Teaching Development Grant to introduce WebCT, the first widely adopted course management system for tertiary education, to the City community in 1998. A year after, Dr. Wong took up the capacity of Learning Management System deployment and courseware development in the Web Teaching Support Services Unit. Throughout his career, Dr. Wong taught physics and astronomy courses in different levels, conducted e-learning workshops for faculty members and acted as investigator in twelve education development projects. Facilitating the launch of massive open online courses (MOOCs) is Crusher's latest challenge.

Title

In Search of a MOOC Platform

Abstract

Great course contents and pedagogical design are essential for a successful massive open online course (MOOC). However, finding the right channel to deliver the MOOC is also a requirement if the institution does not get an invitation to join Coursesa or edX for free. Based on the work in the last 14 months, Crusher will give an overview of MOOC platforms available to institutions planning for their MOOC launch.