The establishment of Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) has led to important changes in the future prospects for higher education worldwide. Full courses in nearly all disciplines imaginable have been developed in recent years, and these are now freely available in platforms such as Coursera and edX, making education unhampered by the restrictions of location and time, as well as cultural and social economical background.

Several of the universities in Hong Kong are conscious of this new development and have either begun, or are about to begin, a range of initiatives to leverage the potential of this trend in enhancing teaching and learning initiatives in the region.

Date : Thursday, 7 January 2016

Time : 9:00am - 12:30pm

Venue : LT 6, 2/F, Yasumoto International Academic Park,
The Chinese University of Hong Kong

Contact: Ms. Ivy Lu (ivy.lu@cuhk.edu.hk)
